

MAURICE SIEVAN
A Fresh Path

Sievan Shows 7 Canvasses

Seven giant canvasses by Maurice Sievan, a Long Island artist, are on exhibition at the Barone Gallery, 1018 Madison Ave., Manhattan, until May 21.

Paintings by Sievan, who lives in Hillcrest and teaches art at Queens College, are in the collections of several museums.

The art critics have described the Sievan show as revealing a fresh path in expressionism that still retains the painter's expertness in poetic nuance. The new paintings are of huge phantoms seemingly rising in a gray mist from the subconscious.

In his earlier work, most of it reflects the Long Island landscape, Sievan was hailed as the painting laureate of suburbia.
