A GROUP REVIEW OF THE CURRENT SEASON

THE summer exhibition at Contemporary Arts is by way of being a review of the season just closing. One or two canvases by each one of the painters sponsored by this organization are shown and in the middle room are some charming small paintings selling under fifty dollars. What we liked best among the larger-scale work were: Sarah Baker's Nantucket, free and breezy with well fused color; Guy Maccoy's Magic Town; Elliot Orr's The Wanderer; Tricca's Hill Top; Maurice Sievan's Near the River; and Martha Simpson's Lonely Road.
